Dedication

To all those countless ones who have dedicated and consecrated themselves to the service of Alma Mater—to the knightly Lancelots and pure Galahads and the fair Iseults and lovable Elaines of Trinity College and Duke University, this the sixteenth volume of the Chanticleer is gratefully dedicated.

Foreword

Out of the darkness and din of a transitional age when Greek art and Roman organization and Christian principles and Teutonic blood were blending themselves into the formation of a new civilization there dawned a brighter day of enlightenment and freedom among men. From this period of synthesis, known to moderns as the Middle Ages, there came as its crowning symbol and material monument that aspiring and beautiful type of architecture known as Gothic. Even so from the foundation of the Duke University of today we see rising against the sky in pure Gothic lines a greater university destined to become a prominent figure on the sky-line of the educational world, but a university which in its most glorious prime will find its basic foundations in these days when the best traditions of the old and the noblest ideals of the new are blending themselves into the building of that greater Duke. In an effort to picture permanently one period in the laying of those foundations we present this volume of the Chanticleer.

Theme Explanation

On the new campus of the greater Duke University is rising a beautiful central Gothic home, now far enough under construction for us to catch a glimpse of its ultimate beauty. In keeping with the type of architecture being employed in these structures which will soon house the varied activities of the University, we have used a Gothic motif throughout in the ornamentative treatment of this book, attempting insofar as it is possible to portray in spirit the consummate beauty of the physical plant now being built. • • • • • • • •

However beautiful the buildings of the greater Duke may be, we cannot truly represent our University if we express ourselves in terms of the physical alone. We are building today with materials far stronger and more enduring than mortar and stone, even as those medievals who built Gothic cathedrals which will endure in the hearts of ages of men who love the beautiful also laid the foundations for a new type of vigorous and enlightened life. In a sense, those who today are giving themselves to the service of Alma Mater are medievals, living in a period of transition and change which will lead to the dawning of a better day. Bearing this in mind, we have attempted to represent in the illustrative treatment of this volume the life of the Middle Ages, with the hope that the drawings found here may inspire us to pledge ourselves anew to the service of the Duke we idealize and love.

Duke University of Today

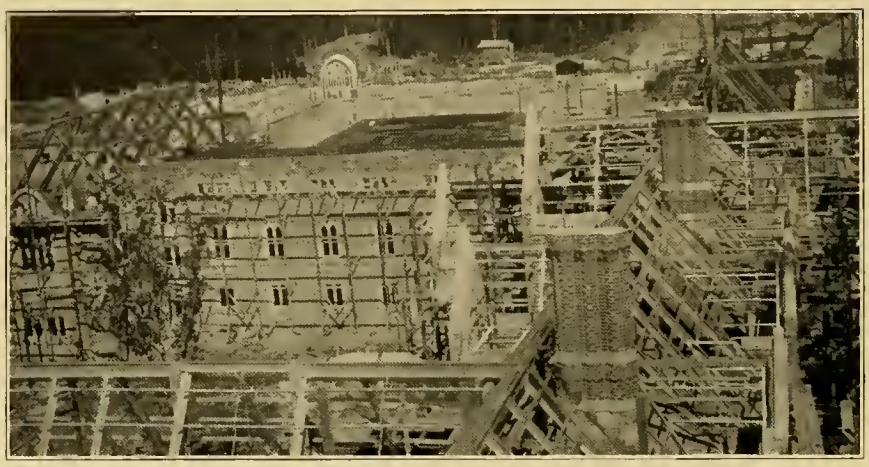
R. L. Flowers

When former students return for a visit to the scenes of other days, they are astounded at the changes that have taken place in the last four years. Some of the buildings around which clung tender memories have been replaced by more beautiful structures, and on every side there is evidence of growth and development. Even those who have lived on the campus for years have difficulty in realizing the wonderful transition which has taken place in the physical plant.

Even more remarkable have been the changes that have taken place in the growth and enlargement of the different departments of instruction. Mr. James B. Duke, in his indenture creating Duke University, made the following statement: "I request that this institution secure for its officers, trustees, and faculty men of such outstanding character, ability and vision as will insure its attaining and maintaining a place of real leadership in the educational world, and that great care and discrimination be exercised in admitting only those students whose previous records show a character, determination and application evincing a wholesome and real ambition for life." The authorities charged with the responsibility have succeeded in carrying out this injunction to a degree that few thought possible in so short a time. Men of the highest type have been added to the teaching force. While the attendance has increased, the selective process in the admission of students has been carried out, and an effort made to admit only those who have a "wholesome and real ambition in life."

Duke University is being organized on the foundation of a well-established College with a history of useful service. While graduate and professional schools are being organized, the development of the College is of supreme concern. The activities of the undergraduates have met with marked success, and today the life of the undergraduate is stimulated by participation in extra-curricula interests which appeal most to him.

The Duke University of today is full of opportunity, enthusiasm, and promise. There is the inspiration that comes from genuine achievement.



Duke University of the Future

R. L. Flowers

It is never wise to speak with too much assurance of what the future has in store. It is possible, however, to take into consideration things that are in process at the present and visualize the things that are to be.

Duke University is at the present time occupying the campus and buildings that will in the near future be set apart as a Co-ordinate College for Women. Certainly there will be no college for women in the country that will have more beautiful surroundings. It is possible to speak with assurance of the opportunities that will be open to women.

The unit of buildings now being erected on the new campus has reached the stage where it is easy to visualize what it will be when completed. In architectural beauty it will be all that could be desired.

Already the Medical School is being organized, and the character and ability of the men already selected for the staff make it evident that this school will take its place with the best in the country.

The professional and graduate schools are being set up, and the progress already made insures that they will be of the very highest type.

It is now reasonably certain that in the Fall of 1930 the new unit will be occupied, and additions to the faculty and administrative organization are being made so that the transition may take place without any interruption.

Duke University has a history running back through a long period of years. It is at the present time full of hope and conscious of real achievement. Judging by the experiences of the past, and fortified by present accomplishments, it is reasonably safe to predict what the future will be. To build a great university is a great and arduous task, but certainly no more inspiring opportunity has ever come to an American institution of learning.

William Preston Few

President

A.B., LL.D., Wofford College; A.M., Ph.D., Harvard University; LL.D., Southwestern University, Allegheny College.

President Few was born in Greenville, South Carolina, and he attended Wofford College. After graduation from Wofford, he did advanced study at Harvard. In 1896 Dr. Few came to Trinity as professor of English, and from 1902 until 1910 he served as dean of the college. Upon the resignation of Dr. John C. Kilgo from the presidency of Trinity College in 1910, Dr. Few was chosen as his successor. When Mr. James B. Duke established Duke University in 1924, President Few became head of the greater institution.

Perhaps no man has had more to do with the progressive development which has gone on at Trinity College and Duke University in recent years than Dr. Few. As a trusted friend of the Duke family, he helped Mr. Washington Duke and his two sons turn their fortunes for the cause of education in the South. Like Craven, Crowell, and Kilgo, who have served Trinity College in the past, Dr. Few has served Duke University admirably in her period of transition from a small institution to a great university of colleges and graduate schools. He is a splendid example of the man who gets things done, and who does not seek personal credit for what he accomplishes

Officers of Administration

Robert Lee Flowers

Vice-President in the Business Division
Secretary and Treasurer

Graduate, U. S. Naval Academy; A.M., Duke; LL.D., Davidson.

Dr. Flowers is a member of a family that has been noted for its service to North Carolina. After his graduation from the United States Naval Academy, he returned to his native state to teach mathematics in Trinity College. At the time when Professor Flowers began teaching, the South was making a great struggle against illiteracy, and he became identified with the foremost educators of the section in an effort to raise North Carolina to a higher plane in the realm of education. Dr. Flowers probably knows more about the business affairs of Duke University than any other person, for he has served as secretary and treasurer of the school since 1910, and he is now secretary of the board of trustees. A man of gracious and commanding bearing, Professor Flowers has won the admiration and devotion of the students as few other people have. "Bobby," as he is known on the campus, is said by many to be the most popular faculty member at Duke University.

Frank Clyde Brown

Comptroller

A.B., University of Nashville; A.M., Ph.D., University of Chicago.

Dr. Brown is a son of the "Old Dominion," and he may be characterized as a fair example of the typical Southern gentleman. He became connected with Duke University as professor of English in 1909, and since that time he has become known far and wide for his ability to expound the writings of Shakespeare and the other English masters. Professor Brown is probably best known in North Carolina because of his work with the North Carolina Folklore Society, which he organized in 1913. For a number of years he has been head of the English department at Duke. As comptroller of the University, Dr. Brown has played an important role in the building of the present plant and in the general development of the school. The imprints of his handiwork will long be seen on both the old and the new campuses. Professor Brown is one of the senior members of the faculty of Duke University, and he has an unrivalled place in the composition of the community.

Officers of Administration

William Hane Wannamaker

Vice-President in the Educational Division
Dean of the College

A.B., Wofford; A.M., Duke and Harvard; Litt.D., Wofford.

Dean Wannamaker is a native of South Carolina, and a graduate of Wofford College. After doing advanced work at Harvard, he went to Germany for foreign study. Twenty-seven years ago Dr. Wannamaker came to Trinity College as professor of German, and in 1917 he became dean of the undergraduate school of arts and sciences. During his incumbency, Trinity College has advanced from the rather insecure position of a small Southern institution to its present place as one of the coordinate colleges of the greater Duke University. No small part of the credit for Trinity's development and progress is due to Dean Wannamaker. He has a forceful and convincing personality, and he possesses a sincere regard for the "eternal fitness of things." He is characterized as a capable administrative official and as a splendid teacher of his beloved German. Dr. Wannamaker is admired and respected, not only by those students who have attended his classes, but by scores of other men and women who have gone out from Trinity College and Duke University.

Alice Mary Baldwin

Dean of Women

A.B., A.M., Cornell; Ph.D., University of Chicago.

Dean Baldwin was born in Lewistown, Maine, of distinguished New England ancestry. Her forebears played important parts in colonial affairs, and some of her ancestors were soldiers in the Revolutionary War. She studied in France after having attended several of the best-known colleges and universities in America. Dr. Baldwin taught in Northern and Western schools for a number of years, becoming associated with Duke University in 1923 as dean of women and assistant professor of history. She is a woman of rare grace and charm, and her ability as a college official has been recognized throughout the country.

In a few years a coordinate college for women will be established at Duke University, which will parallel Trinity College for men. Trinity College and all of the graduate schools will be located on the new Duke campus, while the present campus and plant will be given over entirely to the work of the college for women. In the last few years the co-educational feature has become an important element in the administration and the affairs of Duke University.

Officers of Administration

Holland Holton

Director of the Summer School

A.B., Duke; J.D., University of Chicago.

Professor Holton is a native of Western North Carolina, and he was graduated from Trinity College in 1903. After a number of years' experience in public school administration he became connected with Duke University, and since 1921 he has been director of the Summer School. Professor Holton is also head of the department of education of the University. He is considered by some students the most versatile man on the Duke University faculty, for there are few men here who are connected with as many student activities as is Dr. Holton. At the present time he is chairman of the board of directors of the college Y. M. C. A., and he deserves much of the credit for the achievements and successes of that organization during the past year. From 1912 to 1919, Professor Holton was instructor in public speaking at Trinity College, and during the absence of Assistant Dean Herring this year he has coached the Duke debating teams. An enormous amount of responsibility is placed on Professor Holton, but he has proven himself a most capable leader and executive.

William Henry Glasson

Dean of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences

Ph.B., Cornell; Ph.D., Columbia.

Dean Glasson was born in New York, and for several years he taught economics in Northern schools. In 1902 he came to Trinity College as professor of economics, and he has been definitely connected with Trinity College and Duke University since that time. When the Duke University Graduate School of Arts and Sciences was created in 1926, Dr. Glasson was chosen as dean. The Graduate School has progressed rapidly, and it, like the other departments of the university has had an ever-increasing enrollment. The students in the school represent practically every section of the United States, as well as several foreign countries. At commencement last June, the Ph.D. degree was conferred for the first time by Duke University, and there are a number of candidates for that degree in the Duke Graduate School at present. In view of the fact that the duties of the dean of the school are being constantly augmented, Dr. Robert S. Rankin, of the department of political science, was last fall appointed assistant dean. There are a number of men on the Duke faculty who are recognized leaders in their fields, and they, under the direction of Dr. Glasson, are building a graduate school of national prominence.

Officers of Administration

Elbert Russell

Acting Dean of the School of Religion

A.B., A.M., Earlham College; Ph.D., University of Chicago.

Dr. Russell is a native of Tennessee, but he spent most of his early life in Indiana. He was employed a number of years in religious teaching in Northern and Western colleges, and he has lectured extensively in Europe and America. In 1924 and 1925, Dean Russell was special lecturer for the American Friends' Service Commission in Germany and Austria. After the establishment of the Duke School of Religion, Dr. Russell came to the University as professor of Biblical interpretation. Upon the resignation of Dr. Edmund D. Soper, first dean of the School of Religion of Duke University and now president of Ohio Wesleyan University, Professor Russell became acting dean, and he has ably carried forward the work begun by his distinguished predecessor.

It was the desire of Mr. James B. Duke that special attention should be given to the development of the School of Religion in Duke University. At the present time the school has a faculty which includes some of the foremost religious thinkers of the country, and its enrollment is constantly increasing. Dean Russell has become recognized as one of the spiritual leaders of the South, and he is considered a very capable head of the Duke School of Religion.

Wilburt Cornell Davison

Dean of the School of Medicine

A.B., Princeton; B.A., B.Sc., M.A., Oxford (England); M.D., Johns Hopkins.

Dr. Davison, who was born in Michigan, was a Rhodes Scholar after his graduation from Princeton. He served in France and Serbia with the American Red Cross in 1914 and 1915, and from 1917 to 1919 he was an army officer with the American Expeditionary Forces. For several years Dr. Davison was connected with the Johns Hopkins Medical School as associate professor of pediatrics and assistant dean. On coming to Duke in 1927 as dean of the Duke University School of Medicine, Professor Davison began the establishment of a Medical College which will be second to none in the south, and perhaps in the nation, in physical equipment. The magnificent hospital which is now under construction will have three hundred beds, and it should afford an increasing supply of clinical material for the students of medicine. A faculty composed of leaders in the medical field is now being selected by Dr. Davison and the other University officials, and the School of Medicine will open in the fall of 1930. It will be modern in every particular, and it will afford many advantages that should prove attractive to students.

In Memoriam

Benjamin Newton Duke

Born April 27, 1855 — Died January 8, 1929

A Knight Indeed

by President W. P. Few

INTO the setting of Knighthood that this year's Chanticleer provides, the figure of Benjamin N. Duke fits admirably. For no Knight ever devoted himself more whole-heartedly to the service of humanity. All through his life he gave not only his money, he gave himself; and he had a wide range of interests and sympathy. Wherever there was a human need his heart responded. He was one of the noblest men that ever lived.

For its service to humanity, he loved Trinity College and Duke University and gave to this developing Institution a life-long devotion. He will always stand out as an illustrious example of a man who linked his life to an undying institution in which he believed with the whole heart, who stood by it through evil as well as good report, and who sought for himself nothing except, to him, the sweet and precious privilege of serving his fellowmen.

He was a Knight indeed. He lived for others. He had a golden heart. He wore the white flower of a blameless life.

Coaching Staff, 1928-'29

With the spreading fame of the prowess of Duke University athletic teams, the Blue Devil coaching staff under James DeHart has also gained wide recognition as containing men who are successful mentors in their specialties. Coach DeHart, aided by Tilson, Cameron, and Steiner, turned out a football team this season that surpassed expectations. This is only the third year that DeHart has directed football here, and his system was instilled into the team thoroughly for the first time, accounting for its success. The freshmen had a good season under Coach Cameron, and Steiner aided with both teams as trainer.

An addition to the coaching staff is John W. "Jack" Coombs, former pitcher with Connie Mack's Athletics. For ten years he was one of the greatest moundsmen in the majors, setting a record of winning three games in one world's series. Since 1916 he has been coaching at Princeton and Williams, and now comes to win greater fame as the coach of varsity baseball at Duke. With twenty-one hard games on the schedule, Coombs' team should make quite a showing.

The cross-country team, under Coach Buchheit, won the state championship, won the Southern Methodist track meet at Atlanta, and scored wins over Navy and Washington and Lee. State and Carolina teams were both outrun twice.

Eddie Cameron had charge of basketball this year, with "Cocky" Bennett assisting him as freshman coach. Every team in the state was beaten once, and Carolina and Wake Forest twice. The team defeated South Carolina, V. P. I., and Mercer, and was invited to the Southern Conference tournament, where it excited much comment by its excellent play.

Wrestling and boxing have come into their own as sports under Coach Tilson. The boxing team met with only one reverse, and the wrestling team lost only to Pennsylvania and Navy. These two sports are comparatively young here, but are rapidly gaining favor.

Russell Caudill is grooming his swimmers for hard meets, among them being Georgia Tech and Washington and Lee, and Coach White looks forward to a most successful year with his racqueteers. Last year a Duke student won the state championship in singles, and Coach White expects a repetition this year.

Duke Enters the Southern Conference

Unanimous assent greeted Duke University's application for membership in the Southern Conference when the representatives of the twenty-two schools comprising that body met in Atlanta last December. After the first two days of the conference had been consumed by business, on December 15 the membership committee called for a vote, and not a single dissenting vote was cast.

Newspapers all over the South and East hailed Duke's entry into the conference with enthusiasm, for most of the sports writers had seen Duke teams in action and appreciated the quality of competition put out by them. Long resumes of the success which has attended Duke sports for the last two years were printed, and we take the liberty to reprint an Associated Press story carried by newspapers throughout the East on December 17:

"Duke University, the new member of the Southern Conference, has within the last three years established a wide reputation for playing major football teams of the country and meeting with success.

"After defeating such teams as Boston College, South Dakota University and other strong intersectional foes, and holding the Navy, Georgetown, and others to hard games, the Devils of Durham next season will meet the University of Pittsburgh, Navy, and several Southern Conference opponents. The Pittsburgh game will be at Durham, Duke dedicating its new stadium with that game. The plant, now under construction, will seat approximately 35,000.

Outstanding Stars

"Coach Jimmy DeHart, head of athletics at the institution for several years, having gone there from Washington and Lee to succeed Howard Jones, nationally known coach, has developed several outstanding gridiron stars, including Jankoskie and Buie, backfield men, and Kistler, a great tackle. The latter will captain the team in 1929.

"DeHart also instituted a ten-sport program, the institution placing football, boxing, wrestling, basketball, baseball, cross-country, tennis, swimming, golf and track and field teams in the field of sport for two years. The authorities also plan to institute lacrosse in 1930.

"Incidentally, Duke this year defeated the conference wrestling and cross-country championship teams, both of the University of North Carolina.

"The football team defeated North Carolina State during the past season on the gridiron also.

Tough Games

"Although the complete football schedule of the institution for 1929 has not yet been announced, it is known that the team will play, at least, three Conference teams in its first year out. North Carolina, Louisiana State and North Carolina State all will be met on the gridiron.

"The institution also will be eligible to take part in all conference tournaments during the present scholastic year, the invitation to entrance in the organization becoming effective immediately. It was considered probable that teams will be entered in the Conference basketball, golf, tennis, wrestling, boxing, and other tournaments during the present winter and spring."

Football, 1928

With one of the most difficult schedules faced by any Southern team last fall, the Duke Blue Devils came through the season in a manner that was gratifying to their most ardent supporters. The Duke eleven, characterized by a powerful offensive, established itself as one of the leading aggregations in this section. The team scored more first downs than its opponents in every individual game except in the contest with Georgetown. The 1928 season will be regarded as an epoch-making period in Duke football history, both because the Devils faced some of the strongest teams in the South and East, and because they defeated N. C. State for the first time since football was resumed at Duke. At the end of the season Duke was ranked at second place in the "Big Five" in North Carolina. Throughout the fall, the veterans on the squad were ably assisted by several sophomores, among whom were Murray, Rosky, Hayes, and Rupp. The splendid playing of the Blue Devils was recognized when Weatherby, Bule, Jones, and Jankoskie were given places on the all-state teams.

Duke began the season in South Carolina with Furman, losing the game, 6-0. The Devils scored more first downs than their opponents, but during the game Jankoskie, the star fullback, suffered an injury to his leg which was to keep him on the sidelines most of the fall. Rupp, center, Schofield and Hayes, ends, Haynes and Murray, halfbacks, and Davis, guard, made their debuts in varsity football in the Furman game. Murray proved to be a capable substitute for "Jan," and he lived up to the reputation he had established in his freshman year. "Red" Davis also showed up exceptionally well.

On October 6, the South Dakota team was entertained at Durham by the Blue Devil machine, which was working at its best. Duke scored 25 points, while the visitors made a lone touchdown to score 6 points. The Dakotans, reputed to have a powerful machine, were unable to stop Murray, whose play was featured by consistent ground-gaining. Every man on the Duke team worked faithfully. The line opened holes, and the backs followed their interference in a highly gratifying manner. Bule, by his running, passing, and kicking, proved himself a worthy all-state quarterback, and Captain Hunter did splendid defensive playing.

The next game was played in foreign territory with Boston College, which had one of the strongest teams in the East. Duke, anxious to repeat its triumph of last year, was defeated, 19-0, but the playing of the Devils was almost equal to that of the opponents. Several times the team was in scoring distance, but fumbles at critical moments gave the advantage to the Bostonians. Jankoskie returned to the line-up in this game, and was a consistent gainer in spite of his limping. A feature of the game was the fight between the rival quarterbacks. The Boston quarter was one of the best in the East, but his playing was equalled by that of Bule. Henry Kistler starred with some splendid tackles and his consistent playing.

On October 20, the Blue Devils traveled to Annapolis, and were prevented from defeating the Middies only by a slight technicality. The Navy won the hard-fought game by a score of 6-0. The Duke offensive, led by Murray, Hollingsworth, Buie, and Hatcher, outplayed the Navy boys. The famed "Whitey" Lloyd was stopped time after time and thrown for losses. Rosky excelled in his defensive work by his spectacular tackles back of the enemy line. Rosky, who gives promise of being one of the best ends in the South, took the position formerly held by Henry Kistler, who was shifted to tackle. The Navy game evoked praise for the Blue Devils from Northern sports writers, and established the Duke team as one of high rank.

In their next game the Blue Devils faced one of the strongest teams in the country. The Georgetown men were on edge and, though the Blue Devils fought valiantly, Duke was defeated, 33-0. With a large squad of experienced players, Georgetown had a fresh man in every position during the game. Duke was outweighed, and with a limited number of reserves the Devil team could not keep up a close fight after the first half. Georgetown scored twenty-one points in the second half to add to the fourteen of the first period.

On November 3, after being away for three successive week-ends, the Blue Devils defeated Mercer at Durham by the score of 38-18. In this game the Duke team demonstrated the ability that had gained much praise in the North, and it displayed an undefeatable offensive. The whole team worked splendidly, and it would be almost impossible to name the individual stars. However, Hollingsworth and Godfrey displayed some notable line plunging, Murray repeated his fine playing of previous games, and Hatcher's interference was unusually good. The line was impregnable, and Mercer's only scoring weapon was a trick lateral pass, which was effective because it was a novelty to the Duke players.

On November 10, Duke met Wake Forest, the first of the "Big Five" rivals, in Durham, and the Blue Devils began their state season auspiciously by winning the game, 38-0. The Dukemen attacked equally well through the air and on the ground, and their gaining was consistent. They gave Wake Forest the worst defeat they had ever administered to a "Big Five" football team.

the score of 14-12. The State team had won the year before by the same margin. The game was close and hard fought throughout, but Murray and Godfrey, ably assisted by Hatcher's interference, featured with their consistent gaining, Jankoskie alternated with Murray and Godfrey, and he played his usual high-class football.

Davidson, which was met in Durham on Thanksgiving Day, was the next team to feel the power and versatility of the Blue Devil attack. The Davidsonians were unable to stop the Duke offensive, and the Devils won, 33-0. The Wildcats, who fought with their traditional spirit, were kept on the defensive during most of the game, and they had little opportunity to score. A gratifying feature of the game was the playing of Duke substitutes, many of whom saw action.

It was thought that in the traditional game with Carolina that Duke would have at least an equal chance, and when the rivals met at Chapel Hill on December 8, two unusually well-matched teams faced each other. Carolina won, 14-7, her reserves being the deciding factor. Godfrey was out of the game, and early in the battle Jones and Kistler were hurt. The services of these men were greatly missed. Duke's touchdown came in the first half, and was the result of fine playing by Murray, Buie, and Jankoskie. Buie was the individual star of the game, and he made several long runs, reeling off one for fifty yards. This was the last game for Captain Hunter, who continued the splendid playing for which he had become noted. Other Blue Devils who will not be in the line-up for next year are Brummitt, Hatcher, Jones, and Weatherby. They have brought glory on themselves and their Alma Mater. Captain-elect Kistler will have a large squad of veterans back next year to continue the splendid football which they displayed throughout the 1928 season.

WERBER CROSON

Duke's First Official All-Southern Players

Bill Werber, star guard on the 1929 Blue Devils, made the all-Southern by unanimous choice of sports writers who viewed the Southern Conference tournament. In a dispatch to the Charlotte Observer, the Observer correspondent stated:

"Experts, meaning newspaper sport writers and news service correspondents, declare Werber is the greatest guard ever to play on the tournament floor here. Werber has been a literal pain to opposing teams. His guarding caused the downfall of Alabama and Georgia."

"Basketball Briefs" reported:

"Werber, Duke University guard, is heralded as one of the greatest all-round players in Dixie cage history. He runs the floor well and has a great basket eye."

Werber, in addition to his basketball honors, is a great baseball player. He was a varsity player last season and repeats on the diamond this spring.

Joe Croson, turning a sophomore February 1, created another stir in the basketball circles of the state and South. He was high scorer of the team, even though he played in only half the games. Morgan Blake, in the Atlanta Journal, said:

"Of course Croson is a wonder, magnificent in every sense of the word. He is getting better and better in every game. What a whale of a duel he puts up with Goodwin!"

Croson capitalized his great height and simply overtopped opposing teams, both literally and figuratively. He was hard to stop, and only a giant could do it. The tall lad confirmed the confidence that was placed in him before he was eligible, and even outdid the expectations.

Werber, Croson, and Councilor were called the "Three Musketeers" of the tournament, and were praised to the skies.

BASKETBALL, 1929

Going to the final round of the Southern Conference tourney, the 1929 Blue Devil basketball team made the greatest record of any Duke five since basketball was inaugurated as a major sport. The eyes of the entire country were centered on the "million dollar baby" of the conference as it upset team after team in its march toward the championship.

While comparatively few Duke supporters were at the first game played by the Devils in Atlanta, their plucky uphill fights soon captured the attention of the spectators, and for the latter games of the tourney Duke had a great number of Atlantans rooting for them enthusiastically. Their sturdy defense and flashing offense attracted attention from the sports writers, and every critic wrote respectful paragraphs about Duke's team.

Ed Danforth, writing in the Atlanta Georgian, put a division in his column, speaking as follows:

BLUE DEVILS ARE WIZARDS

"The Blue Devils from Durham look like the cleverest team in the tournament now. They are as fast as the Ole Miss bunch, which is saying something for their fleetness, and they handle the ball with more dexterity than any tournament entry since the championship Tar Heels played here in 1922, '24 and '25. The Devils truly seem to be in league with the Old Scratch himself, in palming the leather and working out of tightly guarded spots."

Other writeups of a more superlative nature followed this. Bill Werber was hailed as the greatest guard ever to step on the Atlanta auditorium floor. "Chalky" Councilor was renamed in Atlanta. The writers called him "Hell On Wheels" Councilor, and the "spark plug of the Duke offense." Morgan Blake, dean of Southern sports writers, who does his daily stuff for the Atlanta Journal, offered the following:

"That Duke is going to be a big factor in conference sports is certain. They have already done enough in basketball, whether they win the title or not, to make their school remembered in Atlanta. In football, wrestling, boxing, baseball, and track, the baby member is going to make the old timers look to their laurels. And we don't mean maybe."

Goodwin and Croson, by far the most outstanding centers to play in the Southern Conference in years, attracted great attention by their brilliance in offense. Before the State game, the writers predicted:

"There will be an individual duel in the State-Duke game that will rival the championship fight between the two schools. It will be a battle between Goodwin, of State, and Croson, of Duke, with the all-conference center as the prize to the winner. These boys have been the outstanding winners of the tournament so far. Goodwin is high scorer of the tournament, but Croson is close behind him. Both are brilliant players, and their struggle will be a humdinger."

And suffice it to say that it was a humdinger. Croson, Councilor, and Werber were called the "Three Musketeers" of the tourney, and the same Morgan Blake states that the impression that they made on Atlanta will last for years to come.

The Blue Devils came through their season by blazing away with twelve wins out of twenty games. The first three games played, on the Northern trip, were lost to Georgetown, Navy, and Virginia, and then the Devils came back to Durham to beat Wake Forest and South Carolina.

In Raleigh, the State Terrors put it on the Devils, but the Duke team retaliated when the Wolfpack came to Durham. The final game between these two in the Southern Conference finals went to the Raleigh quintet.

Followed then four wins over V. P. I., Carolina, State, and Mercer, and after dropping one to Georgia, Duke trounced South Carolina for the second time. With Werber out of the game, Davidson got away with a seven-point margin and won their first tilt with the Devils. Another victory over Wake Forest, a loss to Carolina at Chapel Hill, and sweet revenge on the Davidson Wildcats finished out the season for Duke before the Devils went to the Southern Conference tourney.

BASEBALL, 1928

Playing a hard schedule of twenty-one games, the Blue Devil baseball team of 1928 made one of the most impressive records in the state and South. It won thirteen games, tied one, and lost seven. Such teams as those of the University of Pennsylvania, Pennsylvania State, Maryland, Virginia, Washington and Lee, and the Navy fell before the Duke machine. Four games were played with the University of Pennsylvania team, three being won and the fourth tied.

Sophomores made up the greater part of the team, seven first stringers playing in the field and three sophomores taking their turns in the box. They turned in a good number of wins, too.

The team started its Northern trip by beating Penn State, Maryland, and Georgetown, and on the day of its return journeyed to Chapel Hill to give the Tar Heels the first pasting of the season. The dope was considerably upset over this game, which Duke won 13 to 1. It wasn't even close, and later in the season, when Carolina came to Duke, the Devils ladled them out another dose of the same medicine.

Around the Easter holidays, many boys refused to take advantage of the holidays to go home, but stayed at school for the baseball games with Pennsylvania and Princeton. The first game with the Nittany Lions was a draw at 8 all, but in the next three encounters, Duke had it all her way, and the Lions ate from the hands of the Devil hurlers.

Washington and Lee came to Duke and dropped the first game by a 5 to 2 score, but the argument on the next day ran ten innings and the Generals departed happy with a 12 to 10 victory.

FARLEY PEELER WEAVER, 1928 Captain WARREN

The first Wake Forest game went the way of most games, and Duke won, 3 to 1, but when the Baptists came over to the Methodist church to play, they got the second game, 4 to 1. The second game was a heart breaker, for it was a draw for the first six innings, but things began to break under the strain and the Deacons got three more to sew up the game.

The Devils got stronger as the season progressed, and in the last two games handed out two shutouts. The first was to Davidson with a final count of 2 to 0, and then the boys ran away with Virginia and scored eleven runs before the Virginians had time to know what it was all about.

Bill Werber on shortstop, Dayton Dean on second, and Captain "Bohunk" Weaver on first, proved to be quite an infield when rounded out with Farley or Murray on third. They showed some of the smartest baseball seen in collegiate circles in North Carolina.

Following is a record of the season's games, wins, losses, and the tie:

TRACK AND FIELD, 1928

Led by Captain "Bud" Ervin, the Blue Devil track team went through the season with only one defeat. Captain Ervin was one of the strongest men on the team. His performances in every meet were brilliant and he capped his season's activities on the track and ended his college career as a Duke cinder path man by breaking the state record in the 440-yard run in the Intercollegiate track meet held at Greensboro in May. He ran the distance in 50 8 seconds, breaking the record of 51.2 seconds set by Sides of N. C. State in 1927. The record set by Captain Ervin will probably remain for some time, as it is a very fast mark for that distance.

The start of the season was unimpressive, the Devils having gone to Carolina to lose to the Tar Heels by a score of 46 to 80. The Devils seemed to be unable to get going and they were badly handicapped by the lack of candidates for the pole vault and the broad jump. Bruton, Woodward, and Captain Ervin went well in the meet, scoring a great number of their team's points. Tuttle broke the Southern Conference record in the two-mile run but Henderson of Carolina was ahead of him.

In their second test of the season the Duke men defeated Washington and Lee at Durham after a close match, 71 2-3 to 54 1-3. At all times during the meet the score was close. On this day Captain Ervin led the individual scores with 8 points, finishing first in the 220-yard low hurdles, tying for second in the 100-yard dash, and coming third in the 220-yard dash. Three school records were broken in this meet. Bob Tuttle set a new mark in the two mile run, Brummitt heaved the shot to a new distance, and Ashworth cut a few seconds off the record for the mile run.

The Devils next found stiff opposition in the Davidson College Wildcats. The Cats had their team built around John Currie, nationally-known dash man, who stepped to the front during the day to score 15 points and lead the individuals in scoring. Fred Brummitt was close behind him with 10 points. Brummitt set new school records in both the discus and the shot put. In the shot, the Duke star raised his own mark for a school record, set only a few weeks before in the Washington and Lee meet. Tuttle, two-mile star, also lowered his own mark in that event, set in the meet with the Generals.

Until time came for the distance runs, the Cats were in the lead and it appeared to be a Davidson victory. Woodward and Ashworth, however, finished first and second respectively in the mile event. After that wearing event, the coaches decided they needed the third point in the two-mile run, so Ashworth took his place in it and finished in third place. The three miles of running so close together brought out all that was in Ashworth, but he proved his ability. The final score was 78 2-3 to 47 1-3, in favor of the Devils.

The Dukesters ended their season of dual meets by triumphing over State College. The Devils went on a record-breaking spree that day and set four new marks. Pegram, running in the 440-yard event, broke the tape in a time of 52.5 seconds to end a record of 10 years' standing. Captain Ervin, in addition to leading the field in individual points scored, set a new school mark in the 220-yard low hurdles. Brummitt raised his mark with the discus and Woodward set a new mark in the mile run. The score was Duke 75 2-3, State 50 1-3.

In the State Intercollegiate meet at Greensboro, the Devils went well, but were forced to take second place in the running, with Carolina again winning the state title. Captain Ervin set a new state record in the 440-yard run. Other members of the team placed well in the events, Bruton finishing the 100-yard dash close on the heels of Currie of Davidson. The finish was close, and there were some who said that Bruton had it. Tuttle, two-mile star and one of the greatest runners Duke ever produced, was unable to participate in the meet because of illness.

The Devils ended the track season by winning the South Atlantic meet at Richmond. This was considered quite a great victory for the Devils, as many schools were entered from Virginia, West Virginia, District of Columbia, and North Carolina. Tuttle, Brummitt, Ashworth, Captain Ervin, Bruton, Bennett and others performed with their usual speed and ability to give the Devils a win.

The Duke team took part in one of the two most important track meets in America. Going to the Georgia Tech relays and making a great showing, the sprint medley finished second and the boys running the distance finished third. The Devils were also supposed to enter the Penn Relays at Philadelphia, but they didn't go due to the nearness to the State Intercollegiate meet.

WRESTLING, 1929

The Duke wrestling team, with five veterans back from last year's Southern Championship aggregation, started the season with the promise of repeating its former triumphs. The team suffered a great loss, however, in the graduation of Hank Culp, all-Southern heavyweight champion for two years. Although his place has been successfully filled, no one with the combined strength, weight, and skill of Hank has been found.

The nucleus around which this year's team is built is composed of Captain Jones, Applewhite, Starnes, Cole, Williams, and Jennings. The other places are filled by Savage and Ervin, 125-pound class; Johnston, 145-pounds; Knowles, from last year's freshman team, and Davis, a football star, in the unlimited class.

In the first meet, against N. C. State, Duke won easily by a score of 24 to 8. Applewhite, Captain Jones, Williams, and Starnes pinned their men, and "Chin" Cole and Knowles won on time decisions. The Blue Devils next met the strong Navy team at Annapolis. Duke lost after a hard fight, 17-6, Duke's points being scored by Captain Jones and Starnes. "Chin" Cole, suffering from a rib which was cracked early in his match, lost on a time decision, though his opponent had only a short time margin. Applewhite and Williams also lost by very narrow margins.

The grapplers from Virginia Polytechnic Institute were the next opponents of the Duke matmen. V. P. I. had a strong team, and the match proved to be strong and interesting. Duke had the advantage, however, and won, 18-14. Captain Jones and Starnes continued their winning streak, both throwing their men. Applewhite also pinned his man, and Williams won on a time decision. "Chin" Cole, still suffering from the injury sustained in the Navy meet, put up one of the gamest fights ever seen on a Duke mat. Groaning from pain, he held his opponent to a draw, and, after fighting an extra period, was finally beaten on a slight time advantage. Another match which was especially hard fought was in the 145-pound class. Bill Jennings, giving everything to pin his man in the regular period, had little left when an extra period was called for a decision, and, although fighting gamely, lost by a slight time margin. "Red" Davis, in the unlimited class, outweighed over fifty pounds, was not to be outdone in gameness by his teammates. He fought his giant opponent to a standstill for over nine and a half minutes of the ten-minute period, but was finally pinned by the weight of the V. P. I. man.

Southern Champions!

This title fell to the Devil wrestlers for their unbeaten Southern record. In their last five meets, they whipped four times, but lost one meet to the University of Pennsylvania. Below the Mason-Dixon line, the only meet lost the whole year was to the Navy at Annapolis.

The Virginia Cavaliers came to Durham and lost, and their act was repeated by Washington and Lee a week later. Davidson lost on their own home grounds and Carolina came to Durham for a meet. The Heels caught the next bus homeward, for they lost their meet, though they did manage to draw a couple of bouts.

The victory over Carolina clinched the Southern title for the Devils, and this claim is strongly supported by the other victories of the season over N. C. State, V. P. I., Virginia, Washington and Lee, Davidson, and Carolina.

CROSS-COUNTRY, 1928

A clean record was kept in the fall of 1928 by Coach Buchheit's cross-country team. This team did not lose a meet, and besides beating State and Carolina twice each, the team won the Southern Methodist Meet at Atlanta, and outran the Navy and the Generals of Washington and Lee.

Charles Ashworth, next year's captain of the cross-country team, was first to the finish tape in every meet he raced in, with the exception of the State race, where he was disqualified for running a half-a-mile out of the way, and even there he was the first to finish.

Carolina teams, which were beaten twice this year, have been the state champions for the last nine years, and the Southern Conference champions for the last three years, finishing five men out of the first ten in the

Doxey, Ashworth, and Woodward finishing first in the Carolina Meet

Southern Conference meet. Duke finished five out of the first six against Carolina.

J. E. Doxey, captain of this year's team, has been a valuable member, placing in every meet. W. A. Simon, Jr., C. H. Winecoff, J. L. Woodward, Frank Owen, and James Heizer are the other members of the team.

The coaches are seriously considering entering the team in the National races at Philadelphia next fall, where they are figured to have a good chance of winning the national championship. It is a foregone conclusion that they will show well in the Southern Conference meet in Atlanta next fall, for with such an array of material, Coach Buchheit should turn out a fine team.

The runners of the cross-country team will form the backbone of the distance running squad of the track team this spring, and may be expected to show as well as they did last spring.

BOXING, 1929

Five major meets and the Southern Invitational boxing tournament at the University of Virginia formed the stiff opposition encountered by the 1929 boxing squad. Only one of the meets was lost, and Duke came out of the tournament with a Southern champion in Southgate Martin, bantamweight. Martin knocked out Vaughan, of Carolina, considered the most dangerous man in the weight, and outpointed the other candidates for the title.

Captain Carper gained five successive knockouts over his opponents this season in addition to his impressive victory list of last year, but lost in the finals of the meet at Charlottesville.

Emile St. Amand, boxer in the bantamweight class, has been elected captain for 1930. St. Amand has had an exceptionally good record during his boxing career.

The team started off the season with a visit to Charlottesville, where they knocked the Cavaliers for a bunch of loops, and returned to Durham to win the next three meets on the home grounds. V. P. I. was the next in order for the Devils, and the boxing meet was one event of six which various V. P. I. teams lost to Duke in one week-end.

Washington and Lee's Generals came down to the Bull City for a lesson in tactics, and were sent home well instructed, though the course was a costly one for the Lexingtonians. Captain Carper strengthened his reputation with another knockout, as usual. Florida was next, and the sun-browned boys from the place "where Summer spends the Winter" carried some of North Carolina's gloom back home with them.

Carolina furnished the only defeat which the Devils suffered during their schedule. The feature bout of that evening was the one between the captains of the teams of the rival institutions. It lasted almost a minute, until the referee awarded Capain Carper the knockout on technical grounds. An infraction of the rules stopped the bout short.

The University of Virginia's invitational meet drew the best teams from the entire South. Duke University sent two men into the finals, and one emerged a champion. Two more men from Duke were in the semi-finals, but were outpointed.

Coach Tilson will have a squad of veterans to work on for next year's team. Martin will be back, St. Amand, Matthews, Hottenstein, Smith, and others of equal experience. A fine freshman crew will supplement the varsity and plug the gaps in next year's team.

SWIMMING, 1928

Entering their first season of intercollegiate competition, the Duke swimmers split a season of four meets with two wins and two defeats. They lost to Washington and Lee and Georgia Tech, winning from Furman and Virginia. They were captained by Fred Earnhardt, who broke the Southern record for the 150-yard breast stroke in a dual meet with Georgia Tech, while his brother, Crawford, was breaking the time in the 50-yard dash.

The first meet of the season was with Washington and Lee in the Duke pool. The Devil swimmers started off with a win in the relay but were disqualified because of a bad start, and the margin lost by their disqualification in that event enabled the Generals to win.

Meeting Virginia in the Duke pool, the Devils outclassed them. The Earnhardt brothers, Derrickson, and Hannah led the Cavalier fish by far in the dash and distance events, and Connor and Gibson won in the fancy diving events.

On a Southern trip the Devils met Furman and Georgia Tech, winning from the former and losing to the Engineers. The Earnhardt brothers were proclaimed by sports writers in Atlanta to be two of the best swimmers in college circles. Their records set in the 50-yard dash and the 150-yard breast stroke are still holding, being exceptionally fast times for those distances.

After the Tech meet Crawford Earnhardt was elected to captain the Duke swimmers through the 1929 season.

GOLF, 1928

Their first year in intercollegiate competition found the Blue Devil golf team taking second place in the State championship meet held at the Sedgefield country club, near Greensboro. Carolina's veteran team pushed slightly to the front toward the last few holes of play and bettered the Devils.

The Blue Devils started the season by sending a "make-shift" team composed of two freshmen and two upperclassmen to an invitational meet at the Sedgefield country club. Captain Jennings, Jack Vaughan, Wilson Randall and Ted Mann were the four to represent Duke. The cold weather made play well-nigh impossible, but 13 holes were agreed upon to settle the battle for the cup. The Carolina golfers won first place with a score two points less than that of the Duke team. In this meet, however, individual scoring honors cup went to Captain Jennings, as he had the best score of the day.

After this meet the Varsity was chosen and consisted of Captain Jennings, Frank Bevacqua, Joe Separk, and Ernest Hester. This team played Carolina (twice), Georgia, Wake Forest, and Davidson.

In the first meet with Carolina, over the Hillandale links, where the Devils practice, the result was a tie. However, the second meet over the Hope Valley links found the Carolina boys in the lead and they took the meet. Georgia brought two exceptional men in the Oliver brothers to Durham, and outshot the Devils, to win easily.

The Devils met Wake Forest at Raleigh and won handily, and they also defeated Davidson in the last meet before the state championship event at Sedgefield.

TENNIS, 1928

Although playing stronger teams and minus such men as Whisnant, former state champ, and Burns, the Blue Devil Racqueteers had a fairly successful season. Stewart Rogers was the individual star, as he had been for the three previous years. In the State Intercollegiate Tournament at Chapel Hill, he rose to new heights, and came through a high-class field of entries with brilliant playing to win the championship. Stewart paired with Ham Hargrave to form a successful combination which made a notable record in the tournament and in matches during the year.

In the first meet of the season, an exhibition match against Richmond Medical College, the Doctors were white-washed by a 9-0 score by a team composed of varsity men and freshmen.

On the Northern trip, the University of Richmond was met and defeated, 6-0. The team was brilliantly led by Rogers. He, Hargrave, Ervin, and Holton won their singles matches, and paired up in that order to win both doubles matches. The match scheduled with the University of Virginia was rained out. The powerful Navy team was then met, and, although fighting valiantly, the Devils were defeated without winning a single match. The Georgetown contest was also hard fought. Each match was a close one, but the Devils were again defeated, 6-0. Returning to North Carolina, the University of North Carolina was met twice. The first contest was notable for its high-class tennis. Though putting up a splendid fight, the Blue Devils were nosed out by a score of 5-4. Hargrave and Holton played exceptional tennis.

The second meet with Carolina was won by the boys from the Hill by a score of 9-0. Each match was a close one, the teams being more evenly pitted than the score indicates.

While the loss of Stewart Rogers will be felt greatly this year, Captain Hargrave will be the nucleus of what promises to be a powerful aggregation of netmen. The freshman team brought to light some brilliant and experienced players, among whom are George Rogers, younger brother of Stewart, Rowland Folk, Grady Frank, and Jack Meyers.

When Stewart Rogers won the State Singles championship, it was the second time in the last three years that he had been victor in the state contest. It was also the fourth time in the last five years that the championship had been won by a Blue Devil.

The Blue Imps, getting off to a bad start, closed the season playing an excellent brand of ball.

Playing the first game of the season, the Duke Frosh lost to the Carolina Freshmen by a score of 6-0. Friedman showed up well on the defense, while the offensive playing of Beaver and Brewer was a feature of the game.

The next game played was with the Oak Ridge Cadets. The Cadets had the edge over the Frosh, and the game, though well contested, resulted in a 7-2 win for Oak Ridge.

Wake Forest and the Frosh fought to a 6-6 tie. Neither team was able to make much headway against the other. The line play of both teams was worthy of notice.

The Freshmen found themselves in the game against State. They passed, ran, and kicked their way to a 27-point score. Beaver, Brewer, and Coleman led the attack from the backfield, while Friedman, Bryant, and Hyatt showed up well in the line.

The final game of the season resulted in another win for the Freshmen. The Davidson Kittens were tamed by the score of 18-0. The Freshmen were at their best in this game.

Although they won only two games, the Blue Imps gave promise of developing into Blue Devil stars in the future.

FRESHMAN BASKETBALL, 1929

The Duke Freshman Basketeers, under the direction of Coach Bennett, played seven games during the 1929 season, winning four and losing the other three. The first game of the freshman season was played with N. C. State in the Duke Gym, and the Duke Blue Imps won handily by a score of 34 to 25. Adams at left forward for Duke was high scorer of the game, registering a total of 17 points. The Imps then returned the compliment by allowing State to defeat them 32 to 30 in the State gymnasium, although they were leading 17 to 13 at the half.

V. P. I. came down to Durham to lose by a score of 33 to 21. Beaver and Adams garnered most of the points for the Imps, the former getting 15 and the latter 9.

The traditional rivals from the University of North Carolina came over to get a taste of what their varsity was to receive a few weeks later at Atlanta, and they got it—by a score of 39 to 35. Carter and Davis gathered in 21 points between them.

A third game was played with the State yearlings in Memorial gymnasium on February 10, and this time the Imps lost again, the score being 21 to 20. Wake Forest fell 31 to 20 in the N. C. State gym on February 14. Carolina came in for revenge in the final game of the season for the Imps, and won 36 to 26. Judging from the season as a whole, however, it is evident that there will be plenty of strong reserve material behind the varsity stars on the court next year, with such men as Captain Brist, Adams, Carter, Garber, and others available for varsity material.

Intercollegiate Debating

EACH SUCCEEDING ISSUE of the "Chanticleer" modestly chronicles the fact that Duke University debating teams have had another successful forensic year. The fact that year after year Duke debating teams enjoy successful seasons is not without a reason. The Debate Council has, through its members, been able to stimulate and keep alive student interest to an extent that has brought about active co-operation between the Council and interested students with resulting achievements which are gratifying and a source of pride to Duke University and its widespread constituency.

On March 22, 1928, Jennings G. King and Paul R. Ervin won a unanimous decision over the debaters from Rutgers College when they debated the negative of the question "Resolved: That the United States should cease to protect by armed force capital invested in foreign lands except after formal declaration of war." On March 26, 1928, T. Spruill Thornton and C. Ray Carpenter debated the University of Alabama team here and won a unanimous decision of the judges, the question being the same as that debated with Rutgers. Jennings G. King and Paul R. Ervin, debating the same subject on a Southern trip, lost the affirmative side of the argument to the Emory University debaters by a judges' vote of three to nothing. The same speakers, taking the negative of the same question, won by a unanimous decision from the University of Alabama and by a two to one decision from Birmingham and Southern College.

Only one debate has thus far been held during the 1929 season. In this engagement Everett B. Weatherspoon and C. H. Livengood, Jr., gained a 2-1 decision over the debaters from Emory. The Duke debaters took the negative of the question "Resolved: That expert judges, three or five in number, should be substituted for our present system of trial by jury." On April 8, Everett B. Weatherspoon and William F. Howland will assume the negative of the same question against the representatives of Mercer University. On April 19 William F. Howland and Bob L. Pool will debate the negative of the same question against Birmingham-Southern representatives.

On April 5 J. C. Hanes, J. G. Pratt and H. C. Weingarten will debate the negative side of the question "Resolved: That national advertising as now carried on is socially and economically harmful." These debaters will meet representatives from Princeton University on the Duke University campus.

On April 10 a Harvard debating team will defend the negative of the query "Resolved: That loyalty is the curse of American colleges." The Duke representatives as chosen are Everett B. Weatherspoon, J. Walter Johnson and R. L. Brown, Jr.

On April 12 Jennings G. King and T. Spruill Thornton will debate a team representing the University of South Carolina at Duke University and will take the negative of the question "Resolved: That with existing attitudes toward law enforcement the honor system in student government is inadvisable in American colleges."

On April 22 the debating team composed of Jennings G. King, C. Ray Carpenter and T. Spruill Thornton will leave on a Northern trip and will argue the affirmative side of the question: "Resolved: That with existing attitudes toward law enforcement the honor system in student government is inadvisable in American colleges." On April 23 the same debaters debate Princeton University at Princeton on the same query and will take the negative side of the question. From Princeton the Duke debaters will return South and will, on April 25, defend the negative side of the same question against the University of Maryland.

All preliminaries for the 1929 debating season have been held and the speakers to engage in the contests appearing on the 1929 schedule have been carefully selected. It is believed with justifiable confidence that our speakers will equip themselves in a commendable manner and that the 1929 season will be but a continuation of the fine debating record which Duke University teams of other years have made.

Southern Champions

The past year has been an outstanding one in the history of the Duke Glee Club. For the second consecutive time the club won the state championship among college and university glee clubs. By virtue of this fact, it was privileged to participate in the Southern Contest in Greenville, S. C., on February 9. Again the club was victorious, thus adding new laurels to its previous achievements. Because of this second victory, Duke was invited to represent the entire South in the National Contest, which was held in Carnegie Hall, New York City, March 8. Although Duke did not win the National championship, the club made an unusually fine showing and, according to a number of eminent critics, far surpassed many of the participating clubs.

In addition to the contests and various other tours, the club has sung on numerous occasions in Durham and at the University, thus contributing much to the life and spirit of Alma Mater.

The Ideal Woman

The ideal woman is lovable. She may not be beautiful of face, but she has charm.

She is attractive to men, not repellent.

She is the appeal of Nature. She draws men as the sun draws planets.

Her power is deep, cosmic, as strong and as mysterious as gravitation.

She is the embodiment of love, which is the most persistent, evergreen, and irresistible of human motives.

However forceful her individuality she cannot lose her strange drawing power.

She is passionate, but differs from her weakling sisters in that her passion is unswervingly loyal.

All the cumulative morality of centuries of conscience centers in her love.

She clings, not from subservience, but from a loyalty as intense as sex itself.

She is free. No man owns her soul nor body. She gives, as sovereign queens give. She cannot barter as commoner women barter, she cannot obey as slaves obey, she cannot yield as cowards yield.

She is void of egotism; she is full of self-reverence.

She is happy in girlhood, contented in wifehood, glorified in motherhood.

She is proud to be a woman. She does not want to be a man.

She has wisdom. In every crisis her husband is guided by her instinct.

She has character. She secretly moulds the natures of her children. She is the power behind each one of them.

She is the flowering rose-bush in times of pleasure. She is a high tower in times of trouble.

Her eyes are full of understanding. She knows the feeling back of your words.

Her smile is as the reward of heaven. It is worth more than gold.

She is intelligent as no man is intelligent.

She is brave as no man is brave.

Her vision has that clairvoyance that is bestowed upon no man.

She is variable as water; but as the water of the unfailing spring, of the eternal ocean, changing forever, forever fixed.

She is the best inheritance from the world that was. She is the matrix of the world to come.

In proportion as men look up to her they grow unafraid and wise. When they look down on her, as they treat her with contempt or indifference, they become weak and cruel.

She is not the champion of religious doctrine; she is the incarnation of the religious instinct.

She is the ladder by the brook where man dreams; she reaches to heaven; upon the rungs of her soul angels ascend and descend.

—Dr. Frank Crane

Even in the days "when knighthood was in flower" and chivalry ruled the hearts of all true men, it was scarcely to be expected that one should find the ideal type of womanhood described above embodied in a single human form. There are, however, certain women in most communities who admirably exemplify individual traits possessed by the ideal feminine. In the pages which follow an attempt has been made to indicate, with medieval prototypes in keeping with the theme of this volume of the Chanticleer, those among the Duke University women who possess most nearly as individuals the separate outstanding characteristics of the "ideal woman."

Rowe Appeals Vainly to Great Unwashed

The most stirring election in the history of Duke University has just been held, according to J. Fred Evans, prominent campus politician. The candidates for the presidency were William M. Werber, big, bad, bold athlete from the capital city; James Rowe, roommate of the football captain, and Joseph Savage, frat brother to A. J. Hughes.

In a big mass meeting held in the auditorium on Saturday preceding the election, each candidate told the students if so why, if not why not, and if immediately when. Werber explained that as he was planning to play professional ball, he thought that the fact that he had been president of the Student Government would be an added salary inducement, since the retiring officers had all gotten complimentary theatre passes in recognition of their doing nothing, and that he depended on his close friendship to William Edward Dunstan, Jr., the late sports editor (always two days late, according to Ellison), to bring him in the votes. Rowe lamented the fact that the great unwashed had been leaderless for so long, and comparing himself to the patriarch Moses and the statesman William Jennings Bryan, threw a challenge at the said unwashed. Savage, in a pathetic pose, asked the students to accept him for what he was, explaining that a political platform was like a train platform, being used merely to get in and not to stand on.

Thanks to the hard work of the above-mentioned J. Fred Evans for Werber, he was eliminated on the first ballot. During the night following, the politicking waxed hot and furious. The candidates for the other office were "Lefty" Jenkins and George Hoopy, Weatherspoon having been elected vice-president on the first ballot. The following propaganda was circulated and duly taken for better or worse. Savage was an ambitious man, running for the presidency not because of any love for old Siwash, but merely for the glory of old I Tappa Keg, which aims to merge with a national hogshead in the near future. Rowe was merely running because, having collected all fines and closed up all chapter rooms, he had spare time on his hands, and besides had placed a bet with J. Foster Barnes that he could win. "Lefty" Jenkins was a notorious gambler, not fit to administer funds, and Hoopy, being a fraternity brother to Jerry Hester, was incapable of administering the duties of a burdensome office.

The second day began with J. G. King and John Weber, campaign managers for the Savage-Hoopy ticket, holding the polls, and with Fred Evans putting on occasional necking parties, and even on one occasion a clog dance when he persuaded one freshman, who didn't know either candidate, to vote opposite from the way he asked him to. Sundown being officially ushered in by Fred Roper and John Burke, representing the Taurians, the ballots were counted by King and Weber. After assuring their ticket of a comfortable majority, they invited the public to witness the count, which elected Savage and Hoopy, leaving the unwashed leaderless and the gamblers without a friend.

LACK OF THOUGHT

R. O. T.

Curses, Curses, Curses! Everything is wrong, and we shall rave about anything and everything that don't suit us except the things that would get us into trouble if we raved about them! We learned our lesson last year. We gnashed our teeth about the Physics Department, and they flunked us for our efforts. We don't have any courses under Fierce, so we will talk about him, and besides, he deserves to be talked about anyway. What shall we get mad over? Ah, we know! The campus! The students pick the flowers, and walk on the grass. This is stupid, idiotic, assinine. We mean the actions of the students, not our column! We will now support one of our famous "lost causes." We advocate chewing gum receptacles in every classroom. It is an outrage that the students have to throw their chewing gum away when they go to class. An accurate and efficient gum-checking system should be installed immediately. The students will not tolerate the present waste much longer. But it is hopeless to expect Mr. Fierce to install this system. He never does anything the way we want him to do it. We know a darn sight more about how he should do his job than he does. In fact, we can tell anyone how to do their work. We don't know anything about them, but we are sure we could do them better. But, as we said before, no one will listen to us; they don't know talent when they see it. We give up hope. Curses, curses, curses!

Johns Hopkins: "Suppose you were a doctor. What is the first thing you would do if a patient of yours were blown into the air by an explosion?"

Student Government: "Wait for him to come down."

MEWLINGS

Joan Pauline Flukas

Oh, the beautiful spring is here. And what are the pretty little blue and red and green and orange and purple and brown and black and mauve birdies saying to one another? They are saying that spring is here. Have you ever seen the starlight on a cold winter morning early in August? While perusing the platitudinous vicisitudes of that meritorious transcendentalist, Mr. Beverly Whang, I wondered. I often wonder. Greek is a great study, and the grass grows green and verdant and reminds one of the greatness of a teaberry or a raspberry.

For the moment one is weary, oh, one is very weary—weary with the lateness of the hour (one should be in bed at this time, getting one's beauty sleep, for it is now half past nine!), weary of the light that flickers and weary of the bodily fatigue that comes from over-using one's personality. One wonders how one can dazzle the members of Sigma Upsilon. Ah, and likewise a-ha! One can read another book to them; read with expression, make an impression, avoid suppression, and bore one's listeners. But Spring, what about our colorful spring? Fine, oh, fine-spun glass in a green April rain, and the thoughts of crinkling, dark gray chewing gum—oh, how prosaic—co-ed's hands and ruby lips, and hips, and what not. Was it Wordsworth who said:

"Gee, I like to see you looking swell, baby,
With diamond bracelets Woolworth's doesn't sell, baby,
Till that lucky day, you know
darn well, baby,
That I can't give you anything but love."

Oh, what veiled meaning these mystic lines hold! The metre, the rhyme, the thought, every word a sparkling gem of the purple Orient. How they thrill my little soul, and send cold shivers wriggling down my little spine! This all looks like a great retribution lies in wait for those who cannot pierce the tranquility of one's insignificant intellectual capacities. Ah, retribution gives one an idea! Why not write a drama and call it "Retribution"? Adios, mes amis!

Fraternity Pledge Day

TO THE COMMUNITY GIRL

I've travelled with maidens in quite different sections,
From the time of my infancy, cradle and bib,
And carefully noted their concaves and convections,
The bent of their mind and the cut of their jib,
But there's one class among all these unnumbered legions,
Which always has left my poor brain in a whirl,
I refer to a group found in all the known regions,
For convenience I've called it the "Community Girl."

This term, though descriptive, is scarcely quite fitting,
It suggests only mildly their practice and plan,
What I mean is the type that you find ever flitting
About on the campus, arm in arm with some man.
From the cases I've seen there's no room for suspicion
That quality counts, or that intellect leads;
To get men and more men seems the great guiding mission
Of these maids who count conquests as daily good deeds.

They'll wear "Frat" pins and sweaters, go to pictures and dances,
You're never quite sure who they'll toddle with next,
One MAY go with you, but the next thing she prances
Off with another, leaving you cursing and vexed.
Oh, the actions a maiden will stoop to, to vamp us,
She'll swear in the library that she'll ever be true,
But shortly she's leading a platoon on the campus
Of ardent young swains who have nothing to do.

You may go to their homes, or the "Shack," for some wooing,
Convinced in your heart that you've managed quite well,
That it's a far better thing than you've done, that you're doing,
When in troops a "gang" at the sound of the bell.
These "Community Girls," what a problem confounding!
Their date-books are always more full than their heads,
I could write many verses, much wisdom expounding,
(At the great risk of wearing your patience to shreds).

I was born in the wake of Victorian Tradition,
When women were women, and men often men,
Oh, would that belief in the old superstition
Of one man for a woman, would come back again!
Being pious, my hopes on high heaven I'm placing,
When through with life's problems and its giddy whirls,
I feel sure the authorities won't permit the defacing
Of the fair scenes of Heaven with "Community Girls."

No Wonder COLDS
yield so quickly

Vicks attacks them
two ways at once

Just rubbed on throat and chest, Vicks relieves colds two ways at once:

(1) It acts through the skin like a poultice and "draws out" tightness and soreness.

(2) Its healing vapors, released by the body-warmth, are inhaled direct to the inflamed air passages.

Most colds usually yield overnight.
